WHIRLING ROUND THE SUN
CLAMORING FOR BEER
MUCH IN A THOUSAND WORDS
THE GREAT TREASURE FIRE

By Arthur Brisbane

WE KNOW how the world around us looks. How do we look to one of the cosmic beings, that, presumably, surround us in space?

He sees our sun, a small star, 1,000,000 times smaller than some other suns, rolling in its mysterious journey toward the great star Vega above our heads. Around our sun he sees little planets, following the sun as newly-hatched chickens follow their mother, traveling in a spiral round and round the sun.

IF HE had a very powerful telescope, with microscopic attachment, he might see us and our little works, bridges, houses, canals, railways, banks, prisons and libraries.

Looking even more closely, to read newspaper headings about things that interest us, he would say, "Querr little creatures."

ALL OVER this country the cosmic ear would hear men clamoring for beer, with August A. Busch of St. Louis, Col. Fubst and the Uihlein Brothers of Milwaukee and Jacob Ruppert of New York offering to spend $20,000,000 on new equipment and hire thousands of men. The observant mind would ask: "Why are those little things so much excited about beer? Does it help them to think?"

Imagine his surprise when told: "No it helps them not to think, and that is what they want in a world of worry."

CONCENTRATION on beer would interest the observing mind in America, and concentration on gold in France. That well managed country has more gold than it has ever had in its history, more than 100 per cent of gold back of its currency.

The sidereal spirit asking the French: "Why your violent interest in gold? You can't eat it," would be told: "No, but with it we can buy things to kill our enemies."

OUR cosmic visitor, compared to our the greatest mortal would be, in the language of the English scientist, "like a black beetle compared with God Almighty," would see a collection of human microbes gathered in Chicago, seeking somebody fit to run for President.

IN FAR AWAY Siam he probably would find the pleasant little King Prajadhipok and his family held prisoners by rebels on a warship, the king wondering why he went all the way to America to have catarracts taken from his eyes, if he was to behold the end of Siam's monarchy.

Rebels, probably, will not harm the royal family. Unlike the French and Russians, Siamese look on their royalty as worker ants look up to their queen.

DEMOCRATS in Chicago want to write a platform that will reveal their plan to save the country in as few words as possible. But when nobody knows just what is the matter with the country, few or many words will hardly tell what to do. Democrats call Republicanism the chief evil, but they may be wrong. The effort to write a platform in "not more than 1,000 words" ought

In giving employment on county roads, Surveyor Kirk has followed the rule of rotation among those who have been listed in the relief campaign. CLAIMS OF OHIO GROUP TO SHARE ESTATE DENIED

Court Refuses to Grant Mahoning Countians Part of Millions

Claims of 16 Ohioans to a share in the $40,000,000 estate of L. W. Hutton, Pacific coast capitalist and husband of a former Washington woman, were denied Friday in a decision given by the United States district court of appeals in San Francisco, Calif.

The Ohio claimants, residents of Mahoning county, some from Washingtonville, were sons and daughters of three brothers of Hutton's wife, Mary Arkwright Hutton, who died in 1915. Mrs. Hutton was born and resided in Washingtonville for years.

A $175,000 settlement paid by Hutton to Mrs. Hutton's brothers for their interest in her estate, about 14 years ago, was the act which invalidated the claims of their children, the court ruled.

The circuit court held that the $175,000 settlement to Mrs. Hutton's brothers, "was made without fraud and was just and fair." A lower court previously had given a similar ruling.

NATIONS TO AIR HOOVER'S PLAN

Discussion of One-Third Cut In Armaments Up Next Week

PARIS, June 25.—President Hoover's proposal for a one-third cut in the world's armaments will be considered "in the most serious spirit" by the nations conferring at Geneva, Premier Herriot said today after a meeting of the cabinet.

"Anything which comes from President Hoover has a claim to thorough consideration," he said, "I have read and re-read this message of his and I will read it many times again."

In it there are certain clauses which were inserted out of regard for France, notably a passage concerning fortifications. Perhaps the strength of 100,000 men which the president attributed to the German army is not exact, but the figure may have been a cable error."

The premier criticized the president's omission of any provision for a possible coalition of forces.

Chickens Discussed At Grange Meeting

Talks on "Why Keep White Leghorns" by Albert Bonsall and "Why Keep Rhode Island Reds" by Mrs. Elizabeth Pow added interest to the lecture hour program at a meeting of Goshen grange Friday evening at the hall, northwest of Salem.

After the talks there was a discussion on the merits of these breeds.

Vernon Kampfer gave a recitation. C. S. French read an essay on "On Through the Night." This essay was written by a young woman who graduated from the Friends Boarding school, Barnesville, in 1928. She has since taken up a ranch in Arizona.

It was announced that the Goshen degree team will put on the work at a meeting of Willow Grove grange on July 15.

GANGSTERS QUIZ OHIO YOUTH IN DOUBLE SLAYING

New Yorkers Hold Canton Resident Prisoner For 15 Hours

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK, June 25.—A young man was in the police lineup today on a charge of kidnapping Patsy Fucci, 29, of Canton, Ohio, holding him prisoner for 15 hours while a score of men attempted to learn whether he knew anything about a double slaying on a lower Greenwich village roof last March.

Face Indictments

The prisoner, Joseph Sanzo, 21, is under indictment on a charge of kidnapping. Philip Picciello, arrested in April, also is under indictment in the same case and is in Tombs prison.

The bodies of Jerry Vertnecco and Louis Lanza, who had been strangled were found on the roof March 17. Police said both men had been involved in liquor, slot machine and vice rackets. Two days later Fucci, who lived in East 126th street and who had worked for Vertnecco was kidnapped by friends of the slain men.

During the 15 hours he was held captive, Fucci was questioned about the slayings and about a score of men looked at him, most of them saying "No, I don't think that's the one."

Lived in Canton

Fucci had told his captors his parents lived in Canton, Ohio, and when finally released he was taken to Pennsylvania station, placed on a train and told never to return to New York.

Police learning of the incident, persuaded Fucci to return to New York as a complainant. Police said Picciello admitted taking part in the abduction and involved Sanzo. Fucci will be held as a material witness, police said.

Garden Plan Listed As Being Successful

An inspection of city gardens operated by the unemployed of Salem in the back-to-the-garden movement here last spring, sponsored by the Salem Garden club, was made this week, it was reported today. The gardens are exceptionally prolific, according to reports. There are about 64 gardens in all.

Seed for the gardens were provided by the national Red Cross, through Salem chapter.

STATE HIGHWAY UNIT TO AWARD ROAD CONTRACT

Improvement of Salem-Westville Rd. Will Start In 10 Days

CANTON CO. OFFERS LOW BID FOR JOB

Proposal of $111,707.80 Is Given by General Asphalt & Paving Co.

Contract for the improvement of the Salem-Westville rd for a distance of 6.46 miles will be awarded by the state highway department in Columbus, O. W. Merrell, director, announced today following the opening of 18 bids on the project.

A low bid of $111,707.80 was submitted by the General Asphalt and Paving company of Canton. The estimate on the project, planned for improvement with concrete, 20 ft. wide, is $149,745.23.

Bids received on the improvement are being studied by highway officials in Columbus. It is planned to award the contract and have work get under way on the project within the next ten days.

The concrete will replace the present road pavement with which the highway was improved 13 years ago.

The Salem-Westville rd, State Highway 62, is one of the most traveled highways in Northeastern Ohio. A survey conducted last summer showed the road to be traveled by an aggregate total of 3,200 automobiles daily.

During improvement of the highway a detour will be maintained from Salem to Valley, to North Georgetown to Canton, or, from Valley to Westville.

BAKER SUPPORTS TWO-THIRD RULE

Ohioan, Possible Nominee As President, Plans Fight For Issue

(By Associated Press)
CLEVELAND, June 25.—Newton D. Baker, often mentioned as a possible Democratic presidential nominee, today joined the ranks of those fighting to retain the party's rule requiring a two-thirds vote for the nomination.

"Every member of the Democratic party who knows its traditions and is proud of its history has a duty to protest against the proposed abandonment of the two-thirds rule at Chicago," the former secretary of war said in a statement.

"Our representatives at Chicago have no right to change that rule after we have instructed our delegates."

Baker asserted "a nomination procured from a majority riding rough shod over the established traditions of the party would be deeply embarrassing both to the party and the candidate."

"Sensitive men would find it difficult to defend a candidate who started out with a moral flaw in his title."

ANTI-ROOSEVELT FORCES JOIN IN CHICAGO BATTLE

Situation Tense With Uncertainties; Delegates Arrive On Scene

BY RICHARD L. TURNER
Associated Press Staff Writer
CHICAGO, June 25.—A situation tense with uncertainty today provoked a furious drive for delegates by opposing leaders in Franklin D. Roosevelt's momentous battle for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Several issues involved. With accredited delegates arriving hourly rival chiefs were doing their utmost to obtain some accurate tabulation with which to gauge the doubtful outcome of three vital pending disputes.

These involved: The first prize of next week's gathering—the nomination; the fight to lay aside the venerable two-thirds rule; and the bitter controversy over whether the permanent convention chairman shall go to Senator Walsh of Montana, a Roosevelt supporter, or J. P. Shouse an anti-Roosevelt leader.

All were quick to express confidence that their particular cause would prevail, but checking of delegate rosters, went on never-the-less and in many cases men espousing the same side could not agree as to how many votes their faction controlled.

DEMS TO DEBATE ON DRY QUESTION

Prohibition Main Topic As Delegates Prepare For Convention

(By Associated Press)
CHICAGO, June 25.—The all-absorbing prohibition issue came up for public debate today before a Democratic resolutions committee already agreed on the general form of a repeal submission plank.

Even as the rival leaders of the organized wets and dries prepared for an hour and a half of argument, late in the day, the Roosevelt-controlled sub-committee appointed to draft the platform was at work behind closed doors.

Several tentative prohibition declarations were pending but it was the consensus of the all-star cast of party leaders on the resolutions committee that the plank would be a short, concise assertion in favor of submitting to the states a repeal amendment.

A fight was expected on the attempt of Alfred E. Smith to pledge the party in favor of repeal but the party spokesmen from all sections said the submission declaration is the limit.

DRIVER RESCUES FRIENDS; AUTO DIVES IN CREEK

John Deubler, 55, Fatally Hurt In Mishap North of This City

QUARTET ENROUTE TO V. F. W. EVENT

Accident occurs on North-Jackson-Ellsworth Rd. At 6:30 A. M. Today

One Cleveland World war veteran was killed and three others were injured when the automobile in which they were riding left the North Jackson-Ellsworth rd, and dived into a creek north of Salem at 6:30 a. m. today.

The men, all residents of Cleveland, were enroute from Cleveland to Stuebenville to attend a Veterans of Foreign Wars convention.

Dead, Injured
John Deubler, 55, was killed. His body was removed to the Williams funeral home at Canfield.

The injured are: O. B. McCarty, 37; Carl Louis Wendelburg, 38, and Thomas D. Davis, 31, who were brought to the Salem City hospital. McCarty, who had slight lacerations about the face, received first aid treatment at the hospital.

Wendelburg has deep scalp lacerations and an injury to his right shoulder. Davis sustained lacerations about his face and body and a fracture to his left wrist. He and Wendelburg remained at the hospital.

Driver Rescues Friends

McCarty, driver of the machine, is believed to have lost control of the machine, as it was being driven onto the bridge west of Canfield.

The car swerved from the highway, turned over and dived into the creek.

Quick thinking by McCarty is believed to have been responsible for rescues of Davis and Wendelburg from drowning. He extricated himself from the wreckage and pulled each of three friends from the creek onto the shore.

Deubler is believed to have been killed instantly.

Deputy Sheriff Conway and Mahoning County Coroner M. E. Hayes are conducting investigations.

H. C. Leonard, of Lisbon, county superintendent of schools, gave a talk.

A cow judging contest for boys, women and girls featured the event. Miss Mildred Cobourn of Greenford was in charge of a "stunt."

Approximately 124 people attended the meeting. Mr. and Mrs. C. S. French of Salem were in the company.

Blessed Oceans

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., June 25.—Well, Mr. Hoover's disarmament plan fell just like all of 'em have. Nations that have none say it's "fine," but the ones that are well armed say it's terrible.

I have been to every one of these disarmament conferences both here and in Europe, and if there is one thing that has been absolutely proven that can't be done it's to get countries to agree on what constitutes protection. We can make some fine proposals over here, for Mexico and Canada, are not so strong, but you put us over there in the midst of that mess, and, brother, we would go out and buy another gun, too.

We ought to set by a day of Thanksgiving, blessing the Atlantic and Pacific oceans for their splendid judgment in locating where they did.

Yours,

Will Rogers

GOVERNMENT'S GOLDEN CALF

It would not be surprising to see in every public building a miniature automobile erected on a pedestal with revenue experts kneeling all around it. What a blessing it has been to them that Americans have come to regard the automobile as a necessity, but do not yet object violently to having it taxed as a luxury.

Every time an Ohio motorist pulls up to a gasoline pump he can reflect bitterly that the revenue agents have seen him coming in time to get the stage set. Every time the bell on the pump indicates that another gallon has gone into the tank, he gives a nickel to tax spenders—four cents to Columbus and one cent to Washington. If he buys oil he contributes a penny. If he buys a new tire he contributes some more.

The comforting thought that it all goes to help build better roads serves the purpose no longer. Federal revenue goes wherever it is needed most, to pay the relatives of a congressman, to buy mineral water for the benefit of thirsty officials, to help pay for a battleship, to make up part of the pension of a retired officer or to be lost in the infinite expense of the public debt. Indirectly, a part of it may trickle back to pay for a square foot of paving on a highway built with the assistance of the federal government. The tribute exacted from the state from motorists is coming more and more to be used for general purposes, also.

Fortunately both for officials responsible for levying taxes and people who drive automobiles, taxes on gasoline, oil, tires and the car, itself, are still less painful than their severity indicates they should be. How long will it be, one wonders, until increasing resentment will make tax evasion a major problem in this field, too?

THE TWO-THIRDS RULE

It will be surprising if agitation by Franklin D. Roosevelt's backers to change the two-thirds rule of the Democratic convention for the benefit of their man does not die down as it always has in former times. It is a hurdle that Roosevelt must take to convince groups within his own party, the Republican party as a whole and the country that he is qualified to be the Democratic presidential candidate.

If the attempt to remove it in order to let him get the nomination with a bare majority were to turn out successfully, it would amount to giving the opposition the most powerful weapon it could desire—an admission of weakness from the candidate, himself. Claims that elimination of the rule is advocated in the interest of the party, not Mr. Roosevelt, do not ring true. If it is to be changed, warning should be given far enough in advance so that personal politics will not be affected.

The rule, it is interesting to recall, is 100 years old this year. It was first adopted for the vice-presidential nomination only, in 1832. Its purpose that year was to "stop Calhoun." This year it is expected to "stop Roosevelt." Andrew Jackson, supporting Martin Van Buren, was determined to thwart John C. Calhoun, who might obtain a majority, but could not hope to obtain two-thirds of the vote for vice president. It worked then, and has been working ever since.

Opposition to it is perfectly normal; the source never is hard to find. It is the group backing a man who lacks sufficient strength to get the nomination by the regular method. Obviously, changing the rule at convention time would be viewed as helping one or several candidates at the expense of the others. Governor Roosevelt's backers have made a serious mistake in advertising their intentions. What they have said amounts to a virtual admission that their man is so anxious to be the presidential candidate that he is determined to inflict his presence on his party. If he can pull enough strings to break the two-thirds rule, Mr. Roosevelt, if he succeeds in his present purpose, will find that he has done himself incalculable damage both inside and outside the party.

What Others Say

CONSIDER THY NEIGHBOR'S EARDRUM

The open window and open road days call painful attention to an annual spring pest. He is the auto driver who equips his car with cruel and unusual horns, made to imitate fire engine sirens, locomotive whistles or the crack of doom. Autos must have horns. The law says so and common sense approves the law. There are many times when a vigorous tooting may save life.

But the horn or the driver behind it should have a heart and at least a bit of respect for moderation. Assault and battery upon eardrums might reasonably be considered evidence of reckless driving—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Stars Say—

For Sunday, June 26

Sunday's horoscope holds augury of sudden and intriguing developments, which may exert some singular, irregular or surprising influence on the purely personal affairs or affiliations. It may be a sudden romantic adventure with a note of spectacular or unconventional. Other affairs thrive and are interesting.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of surprising developments, especially in their social, domestic or romantic contacts. A child born on this day may be lively and talented but may be disposed to the irregular, sensational or adventurous in both its business and personal affairs.

Notable nativity: Ernest Torrence, movie actor.

For Monday, June 27

Monday's astrological forecast holds testimonies of many progressive and profitable developments with much to be gained by contacts with large corporations, rings, secret bodies or diplomatic associates, yet there are signs of several disturbances, perplexities and vexations to be overcome before the goal of the ambitions may be reached. Yet hope of this is promising.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year in which many high ambitions and aspirations are to be attained, but this by way of conquest over many vexations.

A child born on this day should be active, energetic, aggressive and adventurous as well as ambitious.

Notable nativity: Charles Parnell, Irish statesman.

I think I could have stood in the wings and taken the star out for supper but I don't gallivant around with show women—not since the crash. This piece is going goofy. Still everybody is establishing new lows—so here goes one in columning.

At the tailor's just before we rode into the big wave, you couldn't have asuit made in less than three weeks. And even that was a vague promise. If the coat split up the back when you sat down they'd make you feel unreasonable by arguing how tight the buttons were sewed on. (Memo to biographer—in the blackest hours of the depression he was always clowning and getting off things.)

As for getting credit these days, justleave your name. The address isn't necessary. Yet ten years ago when I tried to open up an account at a department store, they even peeked under my eyelids, took samples of my dandruff and tested my knee jerks.

But the most fun is stopping at those hotels that welcomed you with a step-ladder handshake. The clerks in such places always gave me a good start toward pleurisy. But have they "clumb"—its the Ozarks in me—down. Many are the times, what perfect control of the tenses! I've stood with aching arches while they adjusted ties, slicked up their nails or made a fuss over someone who just registered from Woffingham, Shirley Church Road, Addington, Surrey. I got so I'd take along tating or a bureau drawer to tidy up while waiting. Today ask for a room and they'll give you a wing of the hotel as quick as that and toss in a match right to boot.

I have an idea that if you stopped into Dunhill's, where the "clerks" wear linen dusters and spread the a from here to there, you could have Mr. Dunhill in person wait on you and perhaps you could call him Alf.

After years of facing the high and mighty crotchets trying to make a few purchases here and there I'm glad some of us old shopping buzzards can turn finger snappers. I've been skewered on icicle stares for so long that I got so I ordered everything possible by mail or telephone. After practicing up a few days I'm going to walk right into Tiffany's and price a collar button or something.

So far as I can see there's only one hard-boiled mug who has not softened up in the world crucible. That's the New York banker. He still runs cold with ice water. God's Frozen People! But he will thaw out. Everybody has to put on a thaw these days with Mrs. Whoosis doing the dishes in her Newport place. Just the other day one of those high-muckalorem door openers gave me a bow. It was just a hurried little nod, but it goes to show what is happening among us proletariats for the goodness sakes alive.

"As Maine Goes—"

There is an old political saw to the effect that Maine's policies are followed by the rest of the country. If so, the vexatious wet-dry problem may soon settle itself. Here is Captain Burleigh Martin, Mayor of Augusta, Me., a bone dry, who is the Republican nominee for Governor of Maine. He will oppose Louis J. Brann, of Lewiston, a Democrat and a wringing wet. So watch Maine and see how the wind blows.

Proper Sleeping Hours For Baby
For the first few weeks of a baby's life, the infant should sleep from 20 to 22 hours out of every 24. From the third to the sixth month, 12 hours of sleep at night and a two-hour nap morning and afternoon, should be the rule.

If a baby cries at any time during the first three months, it probably is suffering from indigestion or from colic. These digestive disorders may be due to several causes. Among these are:

- 1—Irregular feeding.
- 2—Overfeeding.
- 3—Incorrect formula.
- 4—The mother's milk may be unsuited or insufficient.

Irregular feeding is harmful. A baby overfed in the daytime probably will cry all night. There should be regularity in the feeding and the infant should be awakened for this purpose at regular intervals of three or four hours during the day.

If the baby awakens during the night, one night feeding is permissible up to the age of six months. Permitting a baby to sleep on its mother's breast and to nurse most of the night is harmful both to the child and the mother.

When a child cries it is not always a signal for food, and it is a bad habit to let a child nurse every time it cries. The delicate stomach of a baby cannot take care of more than its required amount of food.

A baby should be nursed not less than 15 minutes nor more than 20 minutes, and at regular times. If it is not breast-fed, the formula should be prescribed by a physician, and any changes in diet should be under his supervision.

Colic is a common ailment of babies up to the age of six months, and the symptoms of colic usually alarm the young mother. The baby will cry out loudly, draw up the legs, kick and grow red in color. Holding the baby over the mother's shoulder and patting it on the back sometimes causes the gas to be expelled, giving the little one relief. When the baby has an attack of colic the feet should be kept warm, and warm applications to the abdomen should be used. A warm bath is often helpful.

Breast-fed babies sometimes suffer abdominal pain because the mother has eaten gas-forming foods, such as cabbage, cauliflower, turnips, baked beans, etc., making the breast milk disagree with the very sensitive stomach of the baby.

Constipation should be corrected in both the infant and the mother. This condition is a common source of trouble to both.

Nasal obstructions, either from an acute head cold or from adenoids, will cause wakefulness, and should be corrected.

A baby should sleep in a well-ventilated room, and should have proper bed clothing, neither too heavy, nor yet insufficient. It should not lie in damp or unclean clothes at any time. Give a normal baby proper care in feeding and clothing and usually it will not be restless or wakeful.

In brief, make the baby comfortable and feed it regularly and wisely, then both you and the baby will have peaceful nights.

Answers to Health Queries

A. F. T. Q.—What do you advise for asthma.

A.—The cause must be located before treatment can be advised. Certain odors, possibly the pollen of some plants, gases, dust, violent emotions, intestinal disturbances and certain foods will bring on attacks.

R. G. S. Q.—I am a young girl 18 years of age, 5 feet 3 inches tall. How much should I weigh?

A.—For your age and height you should weigh about 120 pounds as determined by examination of a number of people.

Fail Migration Is Now Under Way

Solitary Wilson's Snipe Is Advance Guard of Southward Trek

BY WILLIAM C. BAKER

Already the fall migration has begun. Even before the advent of the summer solstice, I recorded the advance guard of the birds returning southward—a solitary Wilson's snipe. The snipe is the only bird I can recall which violates the usual customs of migrant birds, for most birds migrate southward in the fall in reverse order to their northward peregrinations. Thus, the warblers and shore-birds, in general, are the latest transients in the spring, and the earliest in the autumn. But not so the snipe, for we expect to see him before the first of April, and the tardiest fellow among his race has passed on ere the great host of warblers and the other shore-birds has arrived. And now that the snipe has already arrived before some shore-birds have hatched their young on the shores of the Arctic sea, we may expect to see him until Thanksgiving, long after the more northern shore-birds have arrived in their winter homes in South America.

We do not have to go far to find Wilson's snipe breeding, for the southernmost reach of nesting range is in Pymatuning swamp, in Ashkubula county and Crawford county, Pennsylvania. His range also extends northward to the Arctic ocean, but the bird which I saw on Monday has not come thence. There are also other manifestations of the far-off autumn, for there are birds which are flocking in considerable numbers. Cowbirds have been flocking for two weeks, while redwings and starlings have also been flocking for a week or more. As the redwings attempt to settle in the willows in evening, they constantly wheel from their perches into the air and back again, and their swishings are like the swishings of sudden squally showers.

In two weeks, or less, there will be other transient shore-birds to keep the snipe company. First to come will be the solitary sandpipers, the lesser yellowlegs and the peeps—the least and semipalmated sandpipers, hardly as big as sparrows, which used to be considered as game!

The summer months between the time of nesting and the return of the warbler would be dull indeed for the bird watchers, if it were not for the migration of the shore-birds, for we see few of them during the spring, but now the summer drouth has left many lakes with mud flats, and these are very attractive to the birds. Here the bird watcher has many opportunities to discover some bird which may be new to him, for the long winged shore-birds will wander long distances from their customary roosts.

The golden plover's spring route lies up the Mississippi, for instance, and the fall route of the main body lies far out to sea from Nova Scotia to South America, or down the Pacific coast, yet such is their leisure in the fall migration that we are much more apt to see them now than in the spring.

In the summer also, we see a different sort of migration—a migration northward of the white herons. Usually the white herons are of two forms—the American egret and the young of the little blue heron. More rarely we see the snowy egret, while most rarely of all we may see the great white heron and the wood ibis, the only true stork in America.

Two years ago there were thousands of these gulf-breeding birds in the northern states, and once I saw 25 of the white little blue herons and about ten of the egrets on the mud flats at Pine lake. The picture they presented was surely like a Japanese print. Strangely, we did not see any of the snowy egrets among them, or perhaps we overlooked them, for it is easy to confuse them with the little blue herons. But last year, there was only a lone American egret recorded in this vicinity and not one of the little blue herons. But for a month, at Guilford lake, there was a flock of the rarer snowy egrets. Of these three forms, the American egret is largest, being the size of the great blue heron, while the other two are about the size of our common bittern, and it is only by noting the absence or presence of slaty blue in the longest wing-feathers, and the color of the legs, that one is able to distinguish between the little blue heron and the snowy egret.

"MURDER of the NIGHT CLUB LADY"

THE NEW THATCHER COLT DETECTIVE MYSTERY

BY ANTHONY ABBOT

CHAPTER FORTY

"Then Basil Boucher met Lola Carewe. That was eight years ago. The meeting came about on the terrace of the Cafe Royale, just down from the Madeleine. Lola was at that time dancing in the Theatre Sans-Souci. She stopped at the Cafe Royale with an elderly admirer, said to be a Belgian who had made millions out of rubber in the Congo. Like Mustafa in La Boheme, Lola sent the old gentleman off in some pretended errand, because her eyes had met those of the earnest young man beside her. Basil and she began to talk. He came directly to the point and told her that he loved her. He had recognized her instantly—and for weeks had he not been haunting the Theatre Sans-Souci, merely to see the dancing Lola? They agreed that late had brought them together. In Lola's car they drove to her apartment where she lived entirely alone. It was the beginning of what seemed to be a high passion.

"It lasted for only a very few weeks. All observers are agreed that Lola seemed quite as fascinated with Basil as he was with his enchantress. They were seen constantly together. She neglected her rehearsals and he made mistakes at the bank. His mother wrote Lola a letter asking her to send the boy, for as she was turning his head. But Basil had promised Lola a ruby!

"Then came the crash. The body of Basil Boucher was found in the Seine. He had left a suicide note. He had stolen from the bank and used half of it for the ruby and half to speculate on the Bourse—to get the money to pay back. The stocks went down, and all was over. In one desperate play he had lost. At the time, Lola told friends at the Theatre Sans-Souci that Basil had refused to allow her to provide for him. She had been eager to do that. She also declared he was the only man she had ever loved. After his death Lola told one girl who danced with her that she would always keep near her the furniture and other appurtenances of the room in which they first loved each other. It was a sentimental idea. I wonder if she really carried it out? I very much do not believe that she did. Women seldom die from sentiment. However, I may be unjust. The Paris police have lost sign of Lola Carewe. She left for America and we do not know what happened after that. All who remember her here still will tell you, however, that Lola seemed to be desperately in love with Basil Boucher. There is absolutely no reason to suppose that she killed the young man. The suicide seems absolutely proved. There was, however, some difficulty in identifying the body—but by certain faint birthmarks. Mrs. Boucher, the mother of the young man, was able to make a positive identification. Please feel free, my esteemed Mr. Thatcher Colt, to call upon me for any further help, if that is possible. And I shall be glad to hear the outcome of your astute researches. Yours fraternally,

"DUPONT"

Colt looked at me with a mysterious smile.

"The clue is there!" he exclaimed, his voice low, but tense with the exultant ring of discovery. "I felt sure it would be. A very slender clue—but it's there. Go home and get some sleep, Tony. My apologies to Betty. And be back at eight!"

When I returned to Center Street at eight o'clock that night, I found District Attorney Dougherty seated opposite Colt, in the private office of the Commissioner. They were talking in low tones, with a sheaf of notes lying on the desk between them. The Commissioner was in dinner clothes and looked as fresh and keen as if he had just arisen. Yet, as I learned later, he had not left the office all day; he had sent out for his dinner, and changed in the dressing-room that adjoins his consultation room.

Dougherty waved at me lugubriously as I drew up a chair.

"I understand the jewel-ring idea is all blown to hell," was his heavy greeting. "And yet—"

"And yet your investigation led us directly to the scene," Colt reminded him.

"A hell of a lot of good that did," returned Dougherty with an Olympian wink around the room. "Did you go through that dossier I sent down from my office?"

"I did," replied Thatcher Colt.

"It did connect Lola with some of the principal jewel operators. But she was not acting as a girl pigeon for them. She was jacking them up for blackmail tribute."

"There is still reason to believe they might have ordered her death," then, said Dougherty.

But to this Colt shook his head decidedly.

"That is impossible. This is what we knew it must be from the very beginning. Dougherty—an inside job. It lies between the family and some of the intimates who frequented the apartment. Rowland, Guy Everett—or the mother, one servant—it had to be someone who had access to those rooms."

"But you haven't settled on the one you think is the most likely?"

"I am beginning to. But it is too early still to try to theorize—too many facts yet to be obtained. We have as yet found no trace of the missing Edgar Quires, brother of one of the dead girls. But our airplane police, whom I shot up to Rochester early this morning, have made one interesting discovery. The telegram which was received by Edgar Quires was from Christine, as we suspected. Immediately thereafter Quires and his wife hurried to the railroad station and left Rochester without taking any baggage. From that moment on, all trace of them seems to have been lost."

"If we could only see that telegram!" mourned Dougherty.

Colt smiled whimsically as he packed down the brown flakes of tobacco in the bowl of his pipe.

"Court processes are so slow," he complained. "But we did manage to see the telegram!"

"Good!" chuckled Dougherty.

"What did it say?"

Colt produced a blank form for carbons of official reports and read aloud:

"All my worst suspicions confirmed. I know I am in danger. Come and rescue me."

"CHRISTINE"

On hearing this development, I confess that a sense of almost hopeless bewilderment settled over me. The riddle seemed to grow darker with every hour. Would it ever be solved? This telegram raised singular questions, indeed. If Christine Quires knew that she was in danger, was it a danger from Lola—who was herself murdered? Or from someone else? If that were so, why did not Lola and Christine cling together, act together, against their common enemy? Moreover, if Edgar Quires had started for New York in answer to that summons, where was he now? Why had he not appeared at the pen-house and demanded his sister? Did he know what had happened to Christine? Or was it possible that the same unseen assassin had also been able to strike at the brother, too? Would his poisoned body be the next to be discovered?

The even voice of Thatcher Colt dispelled my momentary preoccupation with these riddles.

"We are still searching diligently for Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Quires," he stated. "Perhaps before the night is over we shall have some information. Meanwhile, we have been going forward on other lines of investigation. One of these was the story told to us by Mr. Guy Everett."

"The guy with an accent," rumbled Dougherty venomously. In common with Inspector Flynn, the District Attorney harbored a deep resentment against the debonaire and apparently harmless theater man.

"I am sorry to say," returned Thatcher Colt, "that the second alibi furnished by Mr. Everett proved to be no more reliable than the first. We have now been able to check not only the employees but also last night's cash customers. No one at the club remembers seeing him there last night. Yet Guy Everett persists in his story that he did go to the North Star Club and drank punchons of ale between the time he left Christine and his return to the Axtion Club."

"Can he call the name of any person that he saw in the North Star Club last night?" asked Dougherty shrewdly.

"Yes," replied Thatcher Colt promptly. "We tried that dodge on him, and he called the names of three men and two women. Now it is fact that those three men and two women were in the North Star Club last night, and at the hour that Guy Everett places them there."

"Were they regular patrons?"

"Not all of them. The situation does have its puzzling aspects. We all saw Everett when he came to the pen-house. He may have been drinking. But he was certainly not intoxicated. His memory is perfectly clear as to his movements. He sets that forward as his alibi. But there is no one to substantiate it."

to succeed. The first chapter of Genesis tells about the creation of the world, and everything in it, in fewer words than that.

THE Democratic convention rule, which makes it impossible for less than a two-thirds majority to nominate a presidential candidate, is a tricky political rule, but with respectable antecedents. Andrew Jackson used it, to force the nomination of Martin Van Buren.

BUT GOVERNOR ROOSEVELT is supposed to have a majority of delegates. And he really has them, they can abolish the two-thirds rule and nominate him.

Frank Hague, mayor of Jersey City, a powerful personality, calls Governor Roosevelt "the only Democrat that could not win." More about that will be known in November.

THE SALE OF VOTIVE candles is now forbidden in all churches in Rome by Cardinal Marchetti-Selvaggiani, vicar general. He says the candles placed burning before altars of the saints by those praying for help, or giving things, "can easily take on the appearance of superstition."

One mass well heard, one communion well received," says the cardinal, "will obtain more heavenly grace than thousands of candles lighted every day."

The rule does not forbid lighting of candles in churches provided they are bought outside the churches.

CANDLE LIGHTING dates back to days when man's most important task was to keep fire burning. There were no matches, flint or steel, and to let the fire go out was the greatest of calamities. In many religions, maintaining the sacred fire has been considered meritorious.

Ancient Rome's vestal virgins, keeping the sacred fire burning, could have nothing to do with men. Death was the penalty for taking their minds off the fire.

A VESTAL found guilty of unchastity was shut up in an underground cell, covered with earth and smothered. Each vestal, beginning her term of service, had her hair cut off, the locks hung on a certain tree.

For hundreds of generations fire was the most sacred possession of the human race, and, therefore, supposed to be a most acceptable religious offering.

Beauty Not Essential to Screen Success

Merciless Eye of Camera Probes Beneath "Skin-Deep" Loveliness For Personality and Talent. Good News For "Plain Janes."

Contrary to popular belief beauty is not the only asset necessary to a successful career in motion pictures. Not only that, but though beauty is desirable it is by no means absolutely necessary. The searching eye of the camera often finds what is more important than beauty below the surface of an almost plain face. Many traffic-stopping beauties have come to Hollywood only to find that a screen test showed up their pictured image lacking even the personality of a cigar store Indian. Greta Garbo is not what one would call a beauty in the strict sense of the word, but what she lacks in regularity of feature she more than makes up on artistry and talent. The same is true of Anna Sten, Russian actress, who lately arrived in Hollywood. Miss Sten would hardly be noticed among a crowd of American business girls, but on the screen she fairly radiates the personality that has won her a place among film notables. Our own Joan Crawford would not make a great showing at an Atlantic City beauty show, but she has the stuff that makes a great artist and her pictured image attracts more attention than a board-walk full of bathing belles. Then there is Ruth Chatterton, the magic of whose personality, rather than any claim to pulchritude, is responsible for her success on the films, while Helen Hayes made one of the greatest hits of her career in the character part of a disreputable old woman, with nothing to associate her with beauty but the perfect talent that penetrated her disfiguring make-up. In short, if beauty were the high road to film success, 7 per cent of our American disfigurement would be twinkling in the cerulean sky over Hollywood. Talent is what counts and although many attribute the success of Marlene Dietrich to her shapely legs, the German star would still have the power to sway an audience if those glamorous members were fashioned of wood.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

By Wanda Barton

For the Gardening Hostess

If the week-end hostess is a practical devotee to her garden, then the matter of a charming little gift is easy. Shops are now displaying all sorts of delightful trifles, easy to take along and sure to please. A few of these things can be made at home by a clever needlewoman.

Gardening aprons, for example, come in sturdy fabrics, linen and cretonnes, plain or lined. Most important, they are reinforced at strategic points. The capacious pockets are lined with chambray and there are canvas circles stitched on either side at the points where one's knees would ordinarily come through.

These aprons can be obtained plain or fitted. The fitted ones have scissors, trowel and hand rake of small size, fastened with a long cord to the pockets. Thus, they can't be mislaid for a moment—that petty annoyance of many amateur gardeners. And when not in actual use they slip easily into the pockets, out of sight, and in proper place.

A gardening basket may be more picturesque, though bulkier, and it has room for all the digging and pruning necessities. These, too, can be made up at home by loving hands or purchased all ready fitted. Sets of gardening gloves are always acceptable—nobody ever has too many of them, and some of the new ones with their broad, stiff cuffs are rather smart looking as well as affording complete protection for elbows and hands.

Charming little lawn sprinklers in the shape of animals are pleasing and useful gifts. They come in metal—cast iron with colored enamel finish—and are quaint and good-looking.

If there are many neighborhood dogs who crash recklessly into new plants, there's a wire contrivance that will help to keep them out.

Some women gardeners have become converted to the lounging pajama as the ideal costume for comfort. Certainly it permits free bending and stretching and kneeling, yet is ample enough to protect one from insect bites and thorny scratches. They come in a wide range—colorful striped cottons, cretonnes, blocked linens, with flattening floppy hats to match. Just the costume a lady loves to be caught in unawares as she's gathering roses!

Arrange Convention

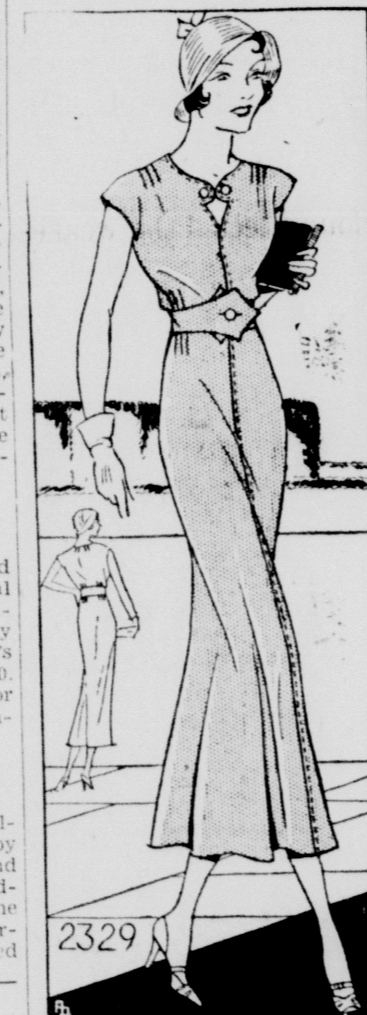

CLEVELAND, June 25.—Howard Y. Williams, of Minnesota, national director of the league for independent political action, was here today arranging for the organization's national convention July 9 and 10. He said there was no hope for "constructive legislation" from either of the two major parties.

Bullet Kills Tot

FINDLAY, June 25.—A stray bullet, believed to have been fired by boys at target practice, struck and killed four-year-old Luther Kidwell, of Deshler, near here, as he ran to meet his father late yesterday. Marshal W. H. Young started an investigation. No one heard the shot.

The Church Invites You

Jesus at the Pool of Bethesda

Our story for today, pertains to another miraculous healing by our Saviour. It occurred early in the second year of the ministry of Jesus, and at Jerusalem. Again in this instance, we see Jesus, as no "respector of persons."—That is to say—He did not confine this blessing to any class or group. He simply ministered to those who needed help, regardless of their position in life or society.

In John 5; verses 1 to 9 inclusive, we read of Jesus as He went to the feast at Jerusalem, and where He saw a multitude of impatient folk, waiting by the pool of Bethesda, for the moving of the waters for their healing; and shall we not say—"Jesus was moved with compassion."

Upon the one hand, Jesus saw a multitude, eating and drinking; with little, if any, thought of the poor wretched creatures, lying by the pool. Upon the other hand He saw God's creatures, helpless and in distress. But Jesus saw further. He saw His opportunity, not only to heal the afflicted, but to demonstrate to unbelievers—His power to save.

It appears that the Saviour selected the weakest one of the lot who waited at the pool. His subject for healing was one who had been afflicted for 38 years, and one who was so badly crippled that it was impossible for him to get near to the water's edge; for he said unto Jesus—"Sir, I have no man to put me in the pool". Then Jesus said: "Rise, take up thy bed and walk." Thus, did Jesus give account of His stewardship on that day, which went into Biblical history with none to dispute the facts—Jesus was criticised for the incident, but that only adds truth to the fact, for had it not occurred, there could have been no criticism.

HOLY TRINITY ENGLISH LUTHERAN

East State St. at Woodland Ave. Rev. George D. Keister, pastor. Fifth Sunday after Trinity.

Sunday school 9:45 (Hebrews 11:8-22). Paul Wilms, supt.

The searching mind of man wants to know the how, why and wherefore of the world and all life. It presents a ponderous problem. There is no better explanation of some of these perplexing problems of origins, than is written in the Book of Genesis. The most masterful attempt of man to improve or perfect this story has been enfeebled by its insufficiency and shortcomings. The simple, straightforward story of the Bible is still the one that is most sure and satisfying. Conjecture and supposition fill the man-made explanation. There were mighty men who lived in those days. Their lives and characters have left an impression upon our day so far removed from the time they lived. They were men of God. They followed God. They had faith in God. Therein lies their success and attainments.

Morning worship 11:00. Sermon: "The Rock of the Church."

The Church of the living God is secure. It stands. It always shall. It is built upon a rock. This statement is made by Jesus Christ. The rock is not the granite or marble of earth. It is not any of the Apostles, no matter how important their lives seemed in the beginning of the Church. Not even Peter would have been worthy to have been the cornerstone of the Church. The Church is not built upon man. If it were, there would be some doubts concerning its stability.

The Church is divine in its origin, its foundation and its continuance. The rock of the Church is faith in the Christ. Not a faith that only recognizes Him as master and teacher. It is a faith that sees in Christ, the Son of the living God. This rock of faith has given the Church endurance, life and stability. "The gates of hell shall not prevail against the Church". The Church will endure for all time.

"CHRISTIAN SCIENCE" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, June 26.

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Let your conversation be without covetousness; and be content with such things as ye have: for he hath said, I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee.... So that we may boldly say, The Lord is my helper, and I will not fear what man shall do unto me" Hebrews 13:5-6.

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passages from the Christian Science Textbook: "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy; "Christian Science is dawning upon a material age. The great spiritual facts of being like rays of light, shine in the darkness, through the darkness, comprehending them not, may deny their reality. The proof that the system stated in this book is Christianly scientific resides in the good this system accomplishes, for it cures on a divine demonstrable Principle which all may understand" (p. 546).

FIX LEAGUE SCHEDULE
JOE JACOBS SUSPENDED
"ACTIONS DETRIMENTAL"

THE SCHEDULE of games in the Salem Softball league for next week was arranged at a meeting of the board of arbitration with team managers at the Memorial building Friday night.

The meeting was among the most important of the season, a number of new rules, including those effecting delivery, ground regulations and trades and releases, were adopted. Monday at the Memorial building a public meeting will be held for the interpretation of baseball and softball rules.

HERE'S the schedule of games for next week:

Monday
Legion vs. Mullins.
Browns vs. Ohio Edison.

Tuesday
Pottery vs. V. F. W.
Tires vs. Studios.

Wednesday
Chicks vs. Cigars.
Legion vs. Browns.

Friday
Mullins vs. Hardware.
Ohio Edison vs. Chicks.

JOE JACOBS' actions following his man Max Schmeling's fight with Jack Sharkey are declared to have been "detrimental to the sport," meaning boxing, by Commissioner William Muldoon of the New York boxing commission.

The commission, suspending Jacobs, Schmeling's manager, took no action against Gumbo Smith, the referee, and the judge who ruled that Sharkey had won the fight. And all Jacobs had done was to accuse the commission of having "robbed Schmeling" by the appointment of unfair officials for the battle. If every person who coincided with Jacobs in his belief that Maxie had been robbed were to be suspended—well, use your own judgment.

The commission suspended Jacobs indefinitely both as a manager and second to boxers but his suspension does not affect Schmeling or other boxers in the Jacobs-Billy McCarthy stable, who probably thought and said the same as Joe but did not do so publicly.

No action was taken either, concerning the two radio announcers who misled their listeners into the belief that the fight was a reproduction of the battle of Waterloo, Custer's last stand and the Dempsey-Flopp fight, all rolled up in one conflict.

But perhaps they really believed it was a good fight. It really was—to hear it over the radio.

We hope that, if a decision, declared so unfair as that which victimized Schmeling, should be given in a contest affecting Salem athletes, that no one will issue suspension proceeding if just accusations of robbery are made.

OHIOAN SCORES GREAT TRIUMPH OVER RING FOE

Scores Only Knockdown of Thrilling Battle at New Stadium

15,000 FANS SEE HEAVIES BATTLE

Former Welter Champion Puts Up Hard Fight; Risko Looks Good

Like a ghost from the past, Johnny Risko, trial horse of the heavyweights, stepped forth today to haunt the championship trail of the new title-holder, Jack Sharkey.

Risko re-entered the front rank of heavyweights last night by administering a sound beating to Mickey Walker in 12 rounds before 15,000 persons at Cleveland's new stadium.

It was a fast and furious battle all the way, with Risko taxing at last seven rounds, and winning the unanimous verdict of Referee Freddy Block and two judges.

It was without doubt one of the best fights the Cleveland rubberman ever fought. His rapier-like thrusts continually backed the New Jersey back to the ropes as he sailed into him, aided by a 27-pound advantage and held a decisive edge when the final gong sounded.

Risko scored the only knockdown of the battle in the second round, one in which he had Walker in trouble several times, but the Irish gamester came back strong, eluded the Cleveland's attempts at kay blows and in several rounds gave better than he received.

Walker, former welterweight champion fighting gamely and cleverly, traded blows with the bigger man all through the bout but was unable to stop Risko's ever-advancing attack.

It was Risko's first fight after a seven-month lay-off. He appeared to be in the best of condition and after the battle issued a challenge to either Max Schmeling, de-throned heavyweight champion, and Sailor Jack Sharkey, the champion.

Risko has won a decision over Sharkey while he lost to Schmeling on a knockout in the seventh round in one of the German's first American appearances.

Risko weighed 199½ pounds against Walker's 171½.

Their Life a Bowl of Roses

Winning seems to be a habit with these girls, but despite the regularity with which they bring home the bacon they still get a big thrill out of victory. They are Mrs. Helen Wills Moody (left) and Miss Sarah Paley, members of the American women's tennis team, shown with the Wightman Cup which they helped win for Uncle Sam at Wimbledon, Eng., recently. An admirer has filled the trophy with roses in a pretty tribute to the racquetters.

Champ with Greatest Admirers

Here are a few fans that will never be turned from their allegiance to Jack Sharkey, newly-crowned champion of the world, by adverse criticism of their idol. They are the wife and children of the Boston sailor, shown as they were reunited with their scrapping dad on his return to Boston after snatching the heavyweight crown from the head of Max Schmeling. Left to right in the group are: Dorothy, Mrs. Sharkey, Marilyn, Champ Jack, wearing goggles to hide the "shiner," and Jack, Jr.

Hurst Cops Batting Lead in National; Foxx Going Strong

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK, June 25.—A new batting leader in Don Hurst of the Phillies took command of the National league during the week but Jimmie Foxx of the Athletics continued to set the pace in the American league.

While Hurst was tacking ten points onto his average of last week to take the lead over Paul Waner of the Pirates with .373, Foxx boosted his batting percentage to .382. Waner ended the week in a batting slump, hitting .369.

Gerald Walker of Detroit had the same average, an increase of five points over his last week's mark.

Klein Boosks Average
Chuck Klein, Hurst's teammate who boosted his batting average nearly 30 points to .362, continued to dominate the play in the National league. Klein's rise in batting placed him fourth in his circuit, three points behind Lombardi, Cincinnati catcher.

The Phillies outfielder also holds the advantage in runs scored, 78 to 66 but Foxx leads in runs batted in, 82 to 71 and in home runs 28 to 21. Babe Ruth failed to keep pace with Foxx in the race for home run honors in the American league. One run during the week was the best the Babe could do, while Jimmie sent three soaring into the bleachers. As the result Foxx now leads 28 to 22.

Averill Ranks High
Following Hurst, Waner, Lombardi and Klein, the leading batsmen in the National league are: O'Doul, Dodgers, .344; Herman, Reds, .337; Stephenson, Cubs, .333; Ott, Giants and Whitney, Phillies, .325, and Cruz, Giants, .322.

The American league's ranking batsman after Foxx and Walker are: Dickey, Yankees, .339; Averill, Indians, .335; Gehrig, Yankees, .332; Combs, Yankees, .330; Porter, Indians, .321 and F. Schulte, Browns, .316.

CULLOP ON TOP IN ASSOCIATION BAT TITLE RACE

Columbus Red Birds Lead in Team Hitting; Mowry Second

(By Associated Press)
CHICAGO, June 25.—Nick Cullop, Columbus outfielder, who was turned back to the minors after setting the American Association home run record in 1930, is staging a successful comeback.

Holds Home Run Record
Cullop, who hit 34 home runs for Minneapolis in 1930, had compiled an average of .367 to lead the regulars. Ted Goulet of Milwaukee, had a mark of 412, but had been at bat only 153 times.

Joe Mowry, Minneapolis rookie had the edge over the field in three departments, having hit safely 109 times for 165 bases, along with scoring 72 runs.

Mowry Ranks Second
Following Cullop among those who had been at bat 200 or more times were: Mowry, Minneapolis, .375; Crawford, Columbus, .359; Swanson, Columbus, .355; Pick, Kansas City, .347; Powers, Toledo, .332; S. Hale, Indianapolis, .331, and Sigafos, Indianapolis, .326.

H. Vandenberg, Minneapolis youngster, was credited with another hurling victory to give him a record of five straight, while Ken Ash of Columbus, gained credit for three more, eight victories against one defeat. Bill Lee, another Red Bird, won two and had nine and two, and Jack Knott of Milwaukee staff, had 10 victories and four defeats.

Columbus continued to set the pace in batting with a team average of .318, while St. Paul retained the team fielding leadership with .976.

PERKINS TAKES LEAD IN OPEN GOLF TOURNEY

But British Star Must Share Honors With Argentina Golfer

(By Associated Press)
FRESH MEADOW CLUB, Flushing, L. I., June 25.—Uncle Sam's all-conquering golfers, accustomed to ravishing other nations of their most prized golfing trophies, were threatened with a large dose of their own medicine today as a field of 72 entered the stretch drive in the national open championship.

With 33-holes to go, two gruelling rounds before sundown, a Briton and an Argentine were setting the pace, a stroke ahead of their closest pursuers.

T. Phillip Perkins, former British amateur star and recent addition to the professional ranks, and Jose Jurado, champion of Argentina, each had a score of 145.

Each, however, owed a vote of thanks to Olin Dutra, whose wind-defying 69 featured the opening round of the tournament. By blowing himself to an expansive 77 his second time around, Dutra slipped into second place with 146, a stroke ahead of Leo Diegel and two in front of Walter Hagen.

Gene Sarazen, Craig Wood and Harry Cooper comprised the next group of 150. The defending champion, Billy Burke, and George Von Elm, the man who fought him through a 72-hole play-off for the 1931 title, were tied at 142, along with the veteran Bobby Cruickshank.

PHILLIES SHOW POWER; DEFEAT GIANT COMBINE

Braves Show Signs of Cracking; Indians Are Idle Friday

(By Associated Press)
With the Boston Braves beginning to show distinct signs of the "crack" that the experts have been predicting since early in the season, the Phillies have become the current "wonder team."

Climb To Fourth Place
Although Boston took a severe pushing around during its home stand and has shown few signs of improvement in two games since then, the Braves still are second, only two games behind the lead. The Phillies, meanwhile, have climbed from seventh place on June 12, to a good fourth today.

Since then they clouted out eight victories in eleven starts. The Phils' "murderers row," Dick Bartlett, Chuck Klein and Jim Hurst, had a 15 hit attack on Don Mooney and Sam Abson of the New York Giants yesterday to gain an 11 to 6 decision and keep Philadelphia only a half game behind Pittsburgh, Bartlett and Klein made four hits apiece.

Hits Tenth Homer
Hurst contributed his tenth home run and a single to drive home three tallies.

Pittsburgh blew a brief early lead over Cincinnati in a duel between Heinie Meine and Eppa Rixey and then won out in the seventh inning when Lloyd Waner hoisted a home run to make the final count 4 to 3. Boston lost a full game to both its pursuers and a half to the league leading Chicago Cubs when the Brooklyn Dodgers copped a 3 to 0 victory.

The Cubs and the St. Louis Cardinals had an open date as did the entire American league.

Ohio Athletes Look Good In Olympic Tryouts; Threaten Records

(By Associated Press)
CINCINNATI, June 25.—George Simpson, former Ohio State university "flash" is out to break the 100 meter Olympic record.

Yesterday in his preliminary heat of the Allegheny district Olympic trials Simpson ran 100 meters under wraps, two tenths of a second slower than the Olympic mark. When his time was announced, Simpson declared "I am going to break the record tomorrow."

So today George Simpson is going to attempt to beat the present standard of .106 seconds. Sammy Stoller, a Cincinnati high school junior, made exactly the same time as Simpson yesterday in his heat and is hoped to give the former Ohio State century flash a run for his money today.

John Black, former Ohio State university track captain, met this standard in the 110 yard high hurdles, covering the distance in .15 seconds flat. Amsden Oliver of Roosevelt High school, Dayton, also qualified in the 400 meter hurdles with .54 4-5 seconds.

Members of Olympic Team to Run; Several Squads Will Compete

A special high hurdle race involving two members of the United States Olympic squad, relay races and 13 other events will be attractions in the first annual night A. A. U. meet at Reilly athletic stadium next Friday night.

More than 100 athletes are expected to compete in the meet which today took on larger proportions than ever with the announcement by Manager Wilbur J. Springer that John Black, captain of Ohio State's track and field team and Jack Keller, world famous hurdler, will race in an exhibition, high hurdle event.

Holds World Record
Keller, former Columbus East High school star, is the holder of the existing world high hurdle record of 14.3 seconds and, along with Black, has won a place on Uncle Sam's Olympic team in international games at Los Angeles, Calif., this summer.

Keller has won national interscholastic championships and titles in national interscholastic meets for the past six years and is recognized as being one of the greatest high and low hurdle stars ever developed in America.

Black chased him to the tape in every meet held by Ohio State during the 1932 track and field season. He is a native of Lima.

Form Olympic Trio
Keller, Black and George Saling of Iowa will form United States representation in hurdle races in the Olympics.

The Salem Athletic club team, composed of former high school and college stars, will be competing for the championship title in the meet, along with teams from Akron, Cleveland and Alliance.

Cleveland will be represented by the powerful Banat Athletic club which last Saturday ranked second to the Salem A. C. in the district A. A. U. meet at Akron.

Ravena will send a delegation of field, weight and sprint stars such as Romita, Black, Allen and Proctor. Black is a sophomore at Miami and recently cleared 13 ft. 5 in. in the pole vault while Romita is a star weight-lifter. Proctor, a distance runner and Allen a dashman. Each of the four have appeared in meets in this city.

John Smith, municipal athletic commissioner at Akron, is in charge of the Rubber City team which will

Improve Technique
Network pickups of speakers from the floor of the Republican national convention apparently didn't satisfy the critical radio engineers, for they have made plans to improve upon their technique when the Democratic gathering opens Monday.

CBS experts have installed an elaborate system of wires connected to tiny lapel microphones. These will be worn by six page boys stationed at strategic parts of the hall. When a state chairman arises to speak the boy will get as close to him as possible to send his voice out on the air.

On the NBC side, the engineers have improved the parabolic or distance microphone, so that it can gather in more sound.

How Delegates Line Up on Eve of Convention

This graphic map shows at a glance the strength of the candidates for the Democratic nomination for the Presidency. It will be noted that Governor Roosevelt, though an Easterner, is drawing the bulk of his pledged votes from the West, Middle West and South. Garner defeated the New York Governor in the California primaries, winning the support of the state delegation of 44. The Texas vote brings the Speaker's pledged total to 90. Smith's great strength lies in Massachusetts, New Jersey, Rhode Island, Connecticut and somewhat in Pennsylvania with the latter splitting its 76 votes 56 to Roosevelt and 20 to Smith. New York's unpledged vote of 94 will probably decide the fate of the Roosevelt candidacy. If the two-thirds rule prevails, 770 votes will be necessary for nomination.

ANTI-ROOSEVELT FORCES UNITE

There was moreover, a general feeling that the first dependable line on the situation would not come until Tuesday's roll call of the chairmanship.

Warfare at Peak
With the warfare at a peak of bitterness, Senator Harrison guard of Democratic peace in congress proposed a compromise only to have it firmly and flatly rejected.

Predicting Roosevelt's nomination on the first ballot, he urged the governor's followers to abandon their campaign for elimination of the two-thirds rule in the interest of party harmony, and that should be given an opportunity to make "tongue speech" with Walsh there after taking over the chairmanship.

"I never opposed the abolition of the two-thirds rule," Harrison said yesterday, "but I have always felt that we ought not to change the rules while in the middle of the game. If to change the two-thirds rule is done merely to win a temporary victory, it will affect us in the campaign. I think it much wiser to forego that necessity."

Almost immediately, James A. Farley, chief Roosevelt tactician, announced the fight against the two-thirds rule would go on with undiminished intensity.
